Action Against a Steamship Company.

Before Judge Fithian.

Zolano the The National Steamship Company.—
This was an action to recover damiges under the following circumstances. It appeared that the plaintiff was a passenger on board the steamship Howetta, the Property of the detendants. On the arrival of the vessel in this port the lugrage was placed upon a wharf, but a box belonging to the value of the box, which, as stated, contained a quantity of valuables, together with 1,500 sovereigns. The defence avered that the statements of the plaintiff in regard to the value of the box and its contents were unreliable, as she had previously informed the officers of the ship that it contained only arriaces of clothing, and that affices svereigns would cover the loss.

The hearing of the case was adjourned.

Before Judge Bedford.

Anage Rediord said:—King, you have been jointly indicted with John Doobs for grand larceny, being implicated in the thoit committed upon the office of Cambreleng & Pyne, 14 Wall street, on the 1st of January, when $100,000 worth of bonds were stoien. This is the first bond case successfully worked up and you are the first party indicted, and from the overwhelming evidence forced to plead guflity. The community are greatly indicted to Captain Jourdan and detective becovered. And a from the overwhelming and detective because of their energy and success in working up the case. Through their efforts $50,000 worth of bonds have already been recovered. There are some $44,000 or more worth of bonds yet to be recovered. Now I shall defer passing sentence in this case until the lost day of the term; but I here tell you in open court that if you see fit between this and the sist of Murch to restore the balance of these bonds, or any part of them, the fact of your restoring them will go in miligation of your gentence.

and apple stands, the cigar stands and soda stands, the ice cream stands and root beer stands, the refreshment stands and all the multias stands of small venders of small wares with which the sidewalks abound. Granting permission which the sidewalks abound. Granting permission to some aged and heipless wildow or crippled old man, having no other means of subsistence, to occupy a portion of the eidewalk—and this was the inception of the evil which has now grown into an unbearable missance—as a peanut or apple stand, and thus enabling them to eac out a living and become self-supporting instead of a burden and expense to the city, was, to a certain extent, justifiable. The time was when these permits were obliganted to such persons as those referred to, and no one ventured to obtrade his stores of arrest marcanaduse apporting states sidewalks without permission from the Common Council and street Commissioner. The times have changed, Hernits are not thought of, are not asked for, and in no wise constitute an essential preliminary to the occupancy of our sidewalks. Strapping hale men and women, enjoying a superfixing of robust health, nil disposed to hard and honest labor, and having no scruples on the subject of adding to the bills of mortality through the villanously unhealthful character of their wares, usurp the sidewalks at will. There is only one way to combat the evil, and that is to do away with it cantirely and at once—to sweep out of existence all these stands—to issue a promuniumento against them and any further occupancy of the sidewalks, and make it as irrevocable as the laws of the Medes and Persons. And while the Mayor and Street Commissioner are about it let them look after signs suspended in visiance of the law, after the blockading of the walks by boxes and bales of goods, and after every sort of firingement of the city ordinances regarding street obstructions. In view of the present ourden of city taxes it may also be advisable to terretout those city railway corporations and others who may have been exacting rent for occupying the public attect, which has been done and a bosing done, and compet them to pay into the city refraed to the competition of the city or the succession of the succession of the succession of the cit which, it is said, turned $200 per annum into the coffers of the hotel keeper, while he in turn paid as much more to some usurper for permission to cater to the wants of the inner man or travellers arriving from Hariera and intermediate stations.

The officials have also commenced to clear the ndewalks on Broadway of signas, cases, awning haps, and all other obstructions which protude beyond the stoop lines. The Commissioner has already reached as far north as Grand street, and intends to carry the war all the way up. Many of the storekeepers have obtained permits in times past from the License Burcau in the Mayor's office to put out the signs, cases, &c., and they apply to the Mayor's office when nothied to remove them. On application they find the permits have all been revoked and that the balance of the permit money is ready for their abceptance. The authorities, having at last made a good beginning in tals mater, can feel purfectly senare of bounts support in their cannets.
